Secret Jet Plane Blows Up

Basingstoke, Hampshire, May, 1. - Britain's third and last hush-hush Flying Wing jet plane blew up in midair today, killing its pilot. The first vanished on a test flight while thought to be travelling faster than sound - 760 miles per hour at sea level. The second crashed.

In each case the pilot lost his life. No more of the planes with the sweptback wings, the De Havilland 108 Swallow, are projected at present .-Reuler.

Valuable Prelude

TAR Acheson's appeal for demonstrated bipartisan support to strengthen his hand in the Big Three deliberations next week seeks a valuable prelude to the negotiations. Senator McCarthy's persistent attacks on the State Department -Communist witch hunting-damaged American prestige seriously, but not irreparably. Much has indeed been done, as the result of the initiative of the Republican leader, Senator Vandenberg, to restore the balance, but as Mr Acheson infers, emphasis on national unity in the conduct of foreign affairs could be highly profitable at this stage. The Foreign Ministers of Britain, France and the United States are to meet in Paris and London next week with the object of working out a common strategy for dealing with fateful international problems and clear indications of harmony within the United States must assist swift progress. The search for agreement between the representatives of the Big Three could easily be handlcapped were there reason to doubt that Mr Acheson represented the United States and not exclusively the Democratic Party. This is so obvious that measures had to be taken to end misconception, by drafting well-known Republicans into the State Department as advisers and consultants, and frankly announcing that they would assist in the formulation of foreign policy. Nothing less would have enabled Mr Acheson to talk in London at the proper level regarding the creation of a unified Western front on the problems affecting Germany, the Far East and the Soviet's cold war tactics. To achieve this result is the real purpose of the meeting of the Big Three, despite Washington attempts to minimise its importance. Hopes of harmony embracing the Big Four, in other words the West and Russia, has long since disappeared. The Baltic air incident made it more than ever unlikely that a formula would be worked out with Moscow agreement and consent. No doubt one subject compelling earnest discussion between Mr Bevin, Mr Acheson and M. Schuman will concern the prospect of a successful approach to the Kremlin, breaking down the existing hostile atmosphere and endeavouring to reach a settlement on the numerous outstanding issues. If, however, there is realism it is certain to produce pessimism, and the conviction that Big Three solidarity alone is guaranteed to make Russia pause and reflect on the value of compromise. That is, if course, what gives next week's meetings crucial importance. To prepare the ground experts have been active for several days In London in an entirely new procedure designed to dispose of minor and bilateral questions and enable the three Foreign Ministers to concentrate on the bigger issues. Of these, Western Union and the. South-East Asia situation will probably be secondary, the forefront being the future of Germany. The test, in short, is not whether the countries outside the Iron Curtain can if required lump together their resources against Soviet expansionist ambitions, but rather whether Britain, France and the United States can agree on a common policy regarding Germany and present a solld front to counter Russian infiltration technique. Time is of the essence. Fruitful results will vastly improve the entire outlook for the future.

Miners Dig For History

Miners from Snowdown colliery, Kent, are taking their picks and shovels to the eight Bells inn at Wingham Well, near Canterbury, to help the land-lord, Mr William Rilston, excavate "his hole".

Rilston's "hole" may be one of the most interesting underground historical sites found recently. It was found during a rat-hunt in an old piggery. A small cavity collapsed to reveal a 30 ft. sloping tunnel, leading down to a network of tunnels and caves.

It is possible that the tunnels and caves are remains of what was an underground chapel or elaborate hiding caves.

The miners have already found some animal skeletons and complicated . mason's work in the chalk walls.

MODERNISING U.S. NAVY

Washington, May, 1.-Admiral Forrest Sherman said today that the U.S. Navy at present had guided missiles good enough to be installed immediately aboard ships.

He also told Congressmen that he thought the atomicpowered submarine included in the naval modernisation programme could be completed in three years.

Guided missiles are designed primarily for use against aireraft. Admiral Sherman declined to give other details.

He was testifying before the House Armed Services' Committee, which is considering the United Press.

YORKSHIRE SHOULD FINISH TOP OF THE COUNTY CRICKET TABLE

SAYS PETER DITTON

The County Cricket Championship appears to be more open this season than for many years. Given normal weather conditions there are half a dozen sides one could reasonably expect to see engaged in the final battle for honours.

Yorkshire and Middlesex, if only by virtue of their success last season, might again be regarded as joint favourites but Northants, Warwickshire, Essex and Glamorgan should not be far away when the honours are handed out.

Crawford White, the Cricket Correspondent of the News Chronicle has already staked his reputation that Yorkshire will finish the season as clear-cut winners. While not sharing his belief to the same degree, I am inclined to agree that 1950 will again see Yorkshire at the top of the table, although not necessarily with a large margin of points in hand.

GRAND WELCOME HOME FOR LIVERPOOL

Liverpool, May 1 .- The welcome given to the Liverpool football team - beaten Cup finalists last Saturday - when they returned to the City tonight could hardly have been greater had they brought the Cup with them.

A crowd estimated at about 120,000 thronged the station and the two-mile route to the ground at Anfield to welcome the party of players, wives and officials who rode in three coaches from the station.

When the train reached Liverpool 20,000 people surged against the crush barriers, and when the leading coach came out of the station, with the players standing through the sunshine roof, there was a terrifle roar and a sea of waving rosettes and bunting.

At Anfield, where a junior match was being played another 30,000 people cheered the season, proved themselves players, who, headed by a the Scottish "Team of the band, walked around the field Year." after the game.

More people turned out on the route as the players and officials left for a civic welcome at the Liverpool Town Hall. Another great crowd of wildlycheering people "raised the roof" when the Lord Mayor appeared on the balcony with the players.

Half an hour before the party arrived at the Town-Hall there was a rush in a nearby street, which was only stemmed with difficulty by police and officials.

Several children were caught in the rush and some had to receive first aid treatment. The excitment was also too much for some elderly people, who fainted and had to be attended to.—Reuter.
